

Life in the Faust Lane

Randolph Burbadge made his first deal with the Devil on a bright, unseasonably warm December afternoon in 1969. Sure, he knew that such transactions are traditionally done at midnight, in some smelly garret, but Randy was playing drums for a rock band called Electric Buddha Sandwich, and they had a gig at a sorority house that evening, and he didn't see why the Devil should care what time it was. What the hell, he figured; if the guy can't even swing a daylight deal, he probably hasn't got the stuff to be worth dealing with . . . And so begins the devilishly tragic story of Randolph Burbadge. Think you've heard this one before? Trust us, you haven't! This product is a short story. Approx. word count: 5,500.
